

On the cover

The West thought it was winning the battle against jihadist terrorism. It should think again: leader, page 11. Adaptable and resilient, al-Qaeda and its allies keep bouncing back, pages 21-23. Kenyan national politics has shifted in response to an attack by Somali terrorists, but not in the way they intended, page 34. Violence in Pakistan undermines the prime minister's hopes of reconciliation with the Islamists, page 46
