

On the cover
Not only was the Iran deal the best on offer, but it holds out the prospect of a better Middle East: leader, page 9. A good interim agreement makes a permanent check on Iran's nuclear ambitions easier to imagine—but still hard to achieve, page 18. The final deal would have big repercussions in the Middle East, page 19

Technology Quarterly

After page 40

China v America China's new air-defence zone suggests a worrying new approach in the region: leader, page 10. An escalation in the ongoing dispute with Japan has angered America and unnerved China's neighbours, page 41. What the new air-defence zone over the disputed Senkakus says about its foreign policy: Banyan, page 45

Germany It is the motor of Europe. Too bad that its proposed new government wants to turn it into a slowcoach: leader, page 12

Thailand If its broken politics are to be fixed, the government, the opposition and the monarchy all need to change: leader, page 13. Just as the government over-reached itself trying to bring Thaksin Shinawatra back, so did the opposition in trying to bring the government down, page 43
