

On the cover
 The subsidies that make borrowing irresistible need to be phased out: leader, page 9. Most Western economies sweeten the cost of borrowing. That is a bad idea, pages 19-22. A new proposal seeks to make banks' debts safe for taxpayers: Free exchange, page 66

Britain and Europe Winning a referendum to keep Britain in Europe should be the start of reform, not the end: leader, page 10. Emboldened and strengthened by his electoral triumph, David Cameron sets out to finish what he began a decade ago, page 28. A plan to tackle the EU migration crisis is woefully inadequate: leader, page 14 and Charlemagne, page 27

Farming in China A drive for self-sufficiency in food comes at a growing cost, page 50. As others cut farm support, China spends more, page 51

Paternity leave Both parents should spend time at home with their babies: leader, page 12. Men have long been discouraged from playing an equal role at home. This is starting to change, page 52. Children whose fathers take even short spells of paternity leave do better, page 53
